Key Features

A central database allows you to securely collect and share vital information so you can get your clients the help they need, when they need it.

Customizable Assessment Forms

Risk assessment forms are completely customizable within the CaseWorthy app, so you can gather all the necessary information to better address the specific safety needs of people fleeing domestic violence.

For example, a domestic violence assessment form allows staff to capture and store data about specific incidents, including:

- Date of incident
- Type of abuse
- Whether police were involved

- If medical attention was required
- If children were involved

Use a domestic violence history form to record and store details about a client's history, including:

- Length and type of abuse
- Age when the abuse started
- Whether physical and/or psychological
- If drugs or alcohol were involved

Not only are you able to collect information about multiple incidents, but you can also create more than one record when multiple abusers are involved. Use the information you collect to create personalized service plans that are tailored to each individual's specific needs.

Upload and Attach Supporting Documents

Plus, you can easily attach supporting documents like police reports and witness testimonials and lock down records to protect victims of domestic abuse. The ability to flag abusers and exclude them from programs and services allows you to safeguard your clients with additional protective measures.

Real-time Tracking and Reporting

In-depth tracking and reporting capabilities empower you to quickly delve into the details you need to see about each case to ensure your clients get the services they need. You'll be able to make referrals and collaborate with other agencies.

Not only can you track the services your own agency provides, but you can also track the availability of shelters and other services for your clients. This detailed view offers you a clearer picture of the overall scope and extent of services that are needed to meet the demands of those coming to you for help.

Upcoming Features

Watch for these new features coming in the future:

- (Victims of Crime Acts) VOCA progress report

Benefits

Respond more swiftly.

Having all the pertinent details of each case immediately at hand means you can quickly make informed decisions and lock in safety precautions to protect the vulnerable. The ability to act swiftly will go a long way toward protecting the vulnerable who come to you for assistance and protection.

See a clearer picture of each person.

The ability to update information in real-time ensures you and staff have the latest information so you can better tailor your services to support individuals with specific needs. Not only can you track daily program and services activity, but you can also report outcomes. And that has the potential to make a big difference in your world – and in the lives of the families you help.

Manage limited resources more efficiently.

Being able to see who is receiving services at any time is key to effectively managing your valuable – and often limited – resources. You'll be able to more easily identify potential gaps in programs where more or less assistance is needed – and dial back or ramp up services in response.
